Global Governance Under Strain Amid US Domestic Chaos and Geopolitical Shifts

Multiple developments underscore a world grappling with institutional fragility and realigning power structures. In the United States, a partial shutdown of the Department of Homeland Security—stemming from congressional gridlock—has disrupted critical services, while revelations about ICE agents possibly lying under oath and controversial deportation practices costing $35 million highlight systemic dysfunction (C1-E15, C1-E26, C1-E38, C1-E46). Simultaneously, US foreign policy faces scrutiny: at the Munich Security Conference, top officials convened even as Congress falters domestically, and Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez directly linked unconditional military aid to Israel with enabling genocide in Gaza (C1-E1, C1-E39). The US also ended temporary protected status for Yemeni refugees despite ongoing conflict, asserting it is now 'safe' to return—a claim contradicted by on-the-ground realities (C1-E5). Geopolitically, Bangladesh’s BNP landslide victory signals a potential pivot away from India toward new regional alignments, raising strategic questions for global powers (C1-E9, C1-E11, C1-E13, C1-E51). Meanwhile, the Philippines confronts accountability for Duterte-era atrocities, with two sitting senators named as co-perpetrators in ICC documents (C1-E14). Environmental and public health crises compound governance challenges: toxic PFAS contamination spans 25 sites in Cumbria and Lancashire (C1-E8), while Hong Kong authorities face pressure to disclose oyster origins after food poisoning outbreaks (C1-E37). Across Asia, economic shifts are evident—the UAE is overtaking Hong Kong as a trade hub (C1-E19)—and cultural-political tensions flare, from Arundhati Roy's Berlinale exit over Gaza-related comments to backlash over Palestinian poetry in a Japanese school exam (C1-E17, C1-E23, C1-E24). These threads collectively reveal a moment where domestic instability in major powers intersects with volatile transitions in global order.

Key Takeaways

- US Department of Homeland Security partially shut down due to funding impasse, disrupting key services (C1-E15, C1-E26).
- ICE agents under criminal investigation for allegedly lying about a Minneapolis shooting; charges dropped against two Venezuelan men (C1-E38).
- US terminated temporary protected status for Yemeni refugees despite ongoing war, claiming safety for return (C1-E5).
- Bangladesh's BNP won a landslide election, potentially shifting foreign policy away from India (C1-E9, C1-E11, C1-E13).
- Philippine senators named as co-perpetrators in ICC case over Duterte's drug war crimes against humanity (C1-E14).
- High levels of banned PFAS 'forever chemicals' detected at 25 sites in Cumbria and Lancashire (C1-E8).
- Arundhati Roy quit Berlin Film Festival protesting jury chair's stance that cinema should 'stay out of politics' regarding Gaza (C1-E17, C1-E23).
- UAE emerging as stronger trade hub than Hong Kong, challenging Singapore's dominance (C1-E19).
- Trump administration spent $35M deporting ~300 migrants to countries with no ties, lacking financial oversight (C1-E46).
- Japanese elite school faced backlash for including Palestinian poetry in entrance exam (C1-E24).
